ABOUT
GANGOTRI GROUP

Gangotri Infrateck in the holy town of Vrindavan, the story of Gangotri began in 1949, when Late Lala Roshanlalji opened a humble retail shop. His son Late Gopal Das expanded it across India, and in 1982, Shri Narendra Agrawal took the brand global through Gangotri Exports becoming a trusted name in textile exports. By 1989, with deep spiritual roots and a vision for Vrindavan's growth, Narendra Agrawal stepped into real estate — winning the trust of ISKCON devotees and spiritual organizations through fair and transparent dealings. His legacy was built not just in land, but in faith.

In 2004, his son Avdhesh Agrawal joined the journey, modernizing the business while the textile wing upheld traditional Indian craftsmanship, Gangotri Infrateck began redefining Vrindavan's skyline — blending heritage with modern living. From affordable housing to heritage-style hotels, every project is a tribute to Vrindavan's soul. The Gangotri Group has proudly advised and served iconic projects like ISKCON, MVT, Food for Life Vrindavan Society, touching the lives of thousands of devotees.

From looms to landmarks, from devotion to development —
Gangotri is a name built on trust.
